

CLARKE COLLEGE, Dubuque, Iowa

February 6, 1978

Sub-committee submits proposal; revising accounting major

By Anne Ely Staff Writer

An interim committee report sugting more structured specificawithin the accounting major post will be presented at today's program will be presented at today's cademic Affairs Committee (AC) meeting at 4:20 in 202 BH. The AAC subcommittee, composed of Peg Snesrud, Pat ton Bob Evanson and students Rene Manning and Debbie Jasper, also propose that accounting and economics be retained as indi-fights for ball with Loras Women's Dear presently an accounting major must take 33 hours in accounting and other business courses to qualifor a degree. There are no related area requirements or sequences kyond an introductory accounting course. The more detailed spe-dication of the proposed program manage three point. One of the proposed programs of the proposed programs of the proposed programs. Clarke rallied for a point them by Reiter. With a scounting major.

Evanson said that accounting is Evanson said that accounting is a part of the requirements for an accounting is part of the requirements.

in the game and the som ex more in demand as a major than Crusader Peg Smith Indet in conomics at present, so future didn't capitalize at the line but rebending will probably emline, but rebounded the last class scheduling will place the phasize more accounting courses stalled the precious total. Stalled the precious second as Reiter and Lorilee loss sent haneconomics. However, he stresed that the committee was in no vay suggesting the abolition of an conomics major. "There are sufficient numbers of Peg Smith, Lorilee Jons, Im competent people in the tri-colleges in economics and accounting," he said. "We don't want to close the door to those students who want to major in economics, but we must face the fact that the reliance must be on the resources of the tri-college program.'

At present a two-semester course in the principles of accounting, and Business Law are the only economics courses being offered at Evanson views the committee report as "food for discussion," and emphasizes the tentativeness of the proposal. "The questions that might be relevant to the future of the economics and accounting programs cannot be answered without the opinions of other people," he

He referred to Sister Kenneth Keller's proposal of last semester to administratively merge the depart. ments of management science and computer science. "If Sister Kenneth Keller's proposal is finalized, we agree that administratively economics and accounting would fall into that new department."

Evanson said, "Our primary purpose is to decide whether it is realistic to retain these majors, and if we do retain them, how it will be done - by which personnel. We are prepared to make a tentative suggestion."

AAC meetings are open to the Clarke Community.

Liplacement

Sister Sheila O'Brien was appointed academic dean by Dr. Meneve Dunham at last Monday's Faculty Senate meeting. 97.5 percent of the faculty voted to retain O'Brien rather than organize a search committee for a new Dean. O'Brien had been serving as acting academic dean since the resignation of Sister Helen Thompson last August.

Gallery given go ahead

The art department was given the go ahead on turning the Mary Jo coffee shop into an Art gallery, by the Board of Trustees at their January 27 meeting.

A committee appointed by Dr. Dunham was given a February 17 deadline for deciding where to move the vending machines and tables that currently occupy the coffee shop. Once this decision is made and acted on the art department may begin the transformation. According to Sister Joan Lingen, chairperson of the department, they will place wooden molding around the ceiling and paint the walls; if however, the allocation given by the board will stretch, the walls will be paneled. Members of the art department will do the work involved in the transformation unless the walls are paneled, then someone else will be contracted to do the

The Board of Trustees is still looking into the possibility of a physical activities facility. At the top of the list of possibilities is a steel building to be constructed behind Terence Donaghoe Hall.

The Board also head reports on the Advanced Institution Development Program (AIDP) grant and

Alternate meal begins Hunger Week activities

An "alternate meal" program tonight in which 25 members of the Clarke College community will eat a balanced dinner of steak, potatoes, regetables and dessert, and another 50 will get a bowl of rice; a 24 hours fast with a bowl of soup for dinner on Feb. 8, Ash Wednesday; and a Union Party for Hunger on Feb. 12, 9 p.m. to midnight, has been organized by Phoenix for Hunger Awareness Week Feb. 6-12.

Phoenix chairperson Aimee Pacholski said the 1/3 to 2/3 ratio is comparable to the number of well-fed and starving people in the world.

"The idea is to compare our situation with that of the less fortunate." A sign-up sheet for the alternate meal which will be held in the Nutrition Lab on first floor, Catherine Byrne Hall, was posted in the carpeted hallway on Feb. 1. Well-balanced eaters and rice eaters will be determined by lot. Those who draw 'X" marked cards will receive the nutritious meal.

Ash Wednesday participants will break their fast at Thursday breakfast in the cafeteria.

Proceeds from the $1 party admission fee and the $60 collected at Clarke on Fast Day, Nov. 17, will be sent to Mother Teresa and the poor in India. "Since the Clarke-Loras Singers met with Mother Teresa in India, I think this is a special cause for the Clarke community," Pacholski said.

She said that $160 was collected from the Hunger Dance last year but they now hope to obtain $300.

Jim Hauber of D-93 will provide music at the party and popcorn will Phoenix is Clarke's Christian Action Organization which promotes on-campus social action. In the past they have worked for Catholic Worker House and babysat children of Vietnamese families.

Slide show of India tour depicts great contrasts orange sunrise; black vultures silhouetted against a flaming sky; needle-thin columns by a glistening Taj Mahal; jewelled elephants be her privilege to dominate her and dancing snakes. . .

... people rummaging through Dying youngsters:

"Impressions of India," a slide presentation of the Clarke-Loras singers' tour to India and Nepal Dec. 26-Jan. 15 was held by Phoenix on Feb. 1.

Souvenirs of the five singers who participated in the presentation: Ruth Dunblazier; Barb Schulte; Judy Speirs; Gina Rogers; and Mary Beth Tauke, included delicate brass pots and vases, a nose ring, an exquisitely carved marble piece, a sandalwood elephant with ivory tusks, a prayer wheel and a Yak jacket. Before the slide presentation, the five members explained the origins of their souvenirs. Tauke said she bought the brass pieces in India. These are similar to the much larger pots which a bride gets as dowry from her parents. The bride's family furnishes the couple's home and the parents-inlaw provide rubies, diamonds and other jewelry items. Marriages are pre-arranged. After the festivities the wife, in most Mist shrouded trees against an cases, begins her servitude to her mother-in-law which ends after she bears a son or in some cases after her son gets married. Then it will

One of the singers explained that heaps of trash for food; fingerless, toeless lepers with deformed faces.

Dying youngsters:

One of the singers explained that in her family's home the husband addressed his wife as "woman."

The woman hardly talked and usually stayed out of the way.

> The Nepalese prayer wheel is a, sure way to get one's prayer heard. When it is spinned, the prayers automatically float to heaven.

Their trip to Bombay, Calcutta, New Delhi, all in India, included visits to old temples wrought entirely out of stone, the Mahatama Ghandi memorial site, a visit with Mother Teresa and tours of her destitute houses, lepers colony and orphanages, elephant rides and other places capped by a presentation for President Jimmy Carter on the steps of the American Embassy in New Delhi. Pat Tully, one of the singers, told the President, "Say, would you walk up the steps so that I can get a picture?" The President obliged, smilingly.

In Nepal, they visited ancient temples and market places and climbed a hill to see the etheral sunrise beyond Mt. Everest.

As twilight gleamed a wealthy gold, one of the singers said, "It is one hope.

X-Council seats filled

Three vacancies on the Executive Council were filled by elections January 27.

Cindy Castans was elected junior class president over Marilyn Cook. Sophomore Martha Crowley was elected Chairperson of Reach Another Person (RAP). She defeated Mary Ann Frommelt.

The Cultural Events Committee selected Kathy Grove to replace Peg Klein as Executive Council representative. Grove, a junior, and Sue Reese were appointed as representatives to the Tri-college Cultural Events Committee, replacing Klein and Liz Rosado.

Peg O'Connell was unopposed as the junior representative to the Student Affairs Committee (SAC).

Castans replaces Sheila McNamara. O Connell replaces Mary Mattucci. Crowley replaces Fran Molloy. All three withdrew from Clarke at semester.

to offer a broad-based program The Crusaders are now Hairl Albee play focuses on decay of elite society

Edward Albee's play, Everything the Garden, will be performed by he Clarke College Drama department March 3, 4, 5, and 6 at 8:00 m.inthe Arena Theater of Clarke erence Donaghoe Hall lickets are $3 for the general blic and $2 for students. Clarke ollege students are admitted free of charge with a CSA activity tick-Leating in the Arena Theater slimited. Reservations can be made by calling 588-6329. The production will be directed Sr. Carol Blitgen, chairman of Garke's drama department. Junior the play's costume designer. The set as designed by drama department Instructor David Brune.

An Albee play has not been produced at Clarke since 1968 when his ditzer Prize-winning A Delicate balance was seen in the Arena heater. Other plays by Albee indude Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, The Zoo Story, Tiny Alice, and The American Dream.

Albee's Everything in the Garden reworking of an earlier English belata on the same name written by late Giles Cooper.

The play is about Jenny and ichard, a lower-middle class. STORE HOURS suburban American couple. Lack of money is the only thing standing in the way of their happiness. A mysterious woman arrives on the scene and offers Jenny an opportunity to earn sizable sums of money by working as a call girl. When Richard discovers this, he reacts with horror, disgust, and rage. He soon realizes that his friends are also involved in the prostitution ring, and Richard faces the fact of his own share in their communal guilt. Albee's theme doesn't center directly on prostitution, but deals with the dama major Stephanie Richardi is moral decay of affluent America — moral decay of civilization. the prostitution of civilization.

Karen Ryker, drama department instructor, commented, "It takes just the right cast to floor an Albee play; strong, forthright, sensitive players."

Cast members include Paul Russo and Cynthia Johnson as Richard and Jenny; Monica McAsey as their daughter Robin; Jane Brenny as the mysterious Mrs. Toothe; David Brune as the wealthy playboy/ neighbor; and Denise Fitzgerald, Mary Chris Kelleher, Robyn Slattery, Jonathan Brown, Simon Ramirez, and Michael Udelhoven as friends of Richard and Jenny.

show set this weekend

diorium will host the twenty-third ay 10 at 7:30 p.m. and 10:00 p.m., Mary 11 at 7:30 p.m. and 10:00 meak p. February 12 at 7:30 p.m. teal preview '78 will be a cof-Make Your Own Kind of Music." A student production with stuhis from both Loras and Clarke the show includes large numbers, solos, dance acts comedy routines.

Sneak Preview '78 is being produced by Ed Weiss and directed by Joy Beach. Music is under the direction of George Rondinelli. Tickets are $1.75 for single admission and $3.00 a couple, and can be obtained by calling Ed Weiss, 588-7354 or can be purchased at the door, which will open one hour before each performance.

Proceeds will go to Muscular Dystrophy, various charity organiza. tions, and to a service scholarship fund for a Loras Junior.

Noon-6 p.

BEER

Mon. Fri.

rticipatory ildren in the aged to join the characerformances if Heidi for the governur program. he Iowa Arts ring drama CIGARETTO

the Loras

the Clarke

is College

ith Cindy to fellow esulting in

de. Clarke

ninutes by s, but the n fast. The and forth,

-23 Loras'

d shooting couldn't rows in the per cent of

Clarke's 41

Plarke 11 to ites of the t and Mary points for could only ens kittens are

Ieidi which morrow afs and their

Coens con-

dren's play present to ast the scorers for the Crusaders vil points. Jones scored Nintell half. Starters were Cuty Star

Reiter, and Sherri Hyde.

play Upper Iowa Thursday es

at University of Duboque.

Clarke

.Iones

Kopko

Enzler

Reiter

Smith

Kitch

en. ed tomorrow ed tomorrow Sunday at 2

7:30 a.m. 8-10 p.m.

Opinion

ARA owes student complete meals

Students who eat dinner after 6 p.m. often receive poorer service than those eating earlier.

According to the ARA Food Service, dinner is served from 5:15 to 6:15; however, employees begin removing food such as desserts, and fruit and spreads shortly after six. Sometimes hot entrees and vegetables even disappear before 6:15. The salad bar and ice cream are cleared promptly at 6:15.

By 6:15 and frequently earlier, employees begin washing tables and sweeping floors. By 6:30, dishroom workers call for trays to be brought to the window.

Forum, Executive Council and other governing bodies often do not adjourn until late, sometimes six, sometimes later. Some students work until six. Other simply prefer to eat later because it accommodates their schedules better. The basketball team also practices until 6:10 three days a week. Students must not only rush to dinner, but rush through their meal.

Employees who remove food and clean up are trying to be efficient, so the dining room can close and they can go home. However, their efforts result in incomplete meals or meals of peanutbutter and jelly, which then must be inhaled rather

Because the students involved are few, does not legitimize this service. Nor does the fact that the students are eating after the majority. A restaurant wouldn't serve only a part of a meal to a patron, who arrived during its hours of service. Neither would a restaurant ask a patron to eat more quickly or start cleaning while they are eating.

Clarke's dining room is in effect a restaurant. Students pay for meals and thus ought to be able to expect the service they COURIER believes that ARA Food Service should meet its contract by serving complete hot meals to students and allowing them to eat it without being hassled by dishroom workers or those cleaning the cafeteria.

Faculty backs O'Brien; Courier in agreement

The COURIER applauds the appointment of Sister Sheila O'Brien as the academic dean of the college.

O'Brien both as associate dean and acting dean has proven her willingness and ability to handle the job. The overwhelming support she received in the faculty referendum confirms

For the college to engage in a search when such an apt candidate as O'Brien was available would have been a waste of precious manpower and time.

The appointment of O'Brien raises another question. Will a new associate dean be appointed? President Dunham has said no associate will be appointed, but that improvements will be made in the area of counseling instead.

Will the strengthening of the counseling services eliminate the need for an associate dean? More must have been involved · in the position than counseling. If not, then perhaps the post should never have been established. If having no associate dean means O'Brien will have to do a job and a half, then COURIER opposes the decision to abolish the post of associate dean. To ask O'Brien to carry the extra workload would be unfair since being academic dean is more than a fulltime job. COURIER congratulates O'Brien, but recommends that the decision not to fill the position of associate dean be reviewed.

Member Associated Collegiate Press

Second class postage paid at Dubuque, IA 52001. Subscriptions are $2 per year. Published weekly during the school year except during Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring vacations and examination periods by the students of Clarke Gollege.

editor: carol j. frahm

sports editor: meredyth albright news editor: elizabeth aga photography editor: barbi ries feature editor: mary kaye reynolds staff: bev schroeder, peg o'connell, kathy grove, kim esser, cindy johnson margaret doyle, yvonne voerger, deb green, mary evans, barb kuhle, mary engelken, barb walsh. photographers: lisa hunter, margaret doyle, tammy edens moderator: geroge r.r. martin business manager: kathy green business staff: janet bloom, annette reiter

COURIER COURIE

By Anne Ely Mary Kaye Reynolds

Reaching directly in front of other shoppers in the meat depart-ment, the busiest section of the supermarket, we grabbed steaks and put them under our coats. No one seemed to notice our bulging purses and coat pockets, or the fact that we weren't pushing a cart. We had been in the store shoplifting for over an hour and yet only one person had given us a second look.

Our purpose was like that of most shoplifters — to see how much we could get away with. But unlike the others, we actually wanted to be caught. Knowing that loss through theft is reflected in retail prices, we were out to test the awareness and concern of the average shopper. Although the consumer indirectly pays for stolen items, the overwhelming majority of "witnesses" remained oblivious to thefts taking place right before them.

We loaded ourselves to maximum capacity in the grocery store, made it past the checkout counter, and unloaded our haul in the car. No one in the store knew of our experiment except the store manager, who also wanted to test the awareness of his employees. Looking at our collection, including beef stew, hot dogs, candles and a pair of pliers, we decided to arouse more suspicion and go back for a second trip. This time we concentrated mainly on the meat department, which presented a particular challenge. There were many shoppers around, and the counter was in full view of many meat processing employees. Finding shoppers ignoring us as much as before, we began speaking to each other in normal tones about our stuffed purses. T-Bones, chicken, pork chops and ground beef were part of our second haul, and still the only person who looked suspiciously at us was a woman giving free sausage samples neither a shopper nor a regular employee. Even she did not report us, and we made our way to the car a second time. We made it a point to unload our purses in plain view of a man in a pickup truck next to us. We could tell he was staring intently at us, especially when we came back the second time, but he made no move

We had stolen enough merchandise to constitute grand larceny, which is anything valued over $20. Our theft totaled $46.23. It took several trips to take all the hot items back into the store where we checked in with the manager. He was not surprised to hear our report that no one paid us any special attention. He said often the employees at the shoppers are not conscious of anyone's activities but their own.

We were unprepared for the depression that suddenly enveloped us as we drove to our next scene of crime - Kennedy Mall, two gift shop owners were expecting our ar-

We became more daring in the second venture, since we were now equipped with empty shopping bags which would have looked out of place in the grocery store. The items we took this time were smaller but more expensive: stuffed animals, scarves, and knicknacks included. We practically followed a mother and daughter around the store, blatantly stuffing merchandise into our bags and purses whenever we knew they were looking. Again, only the manager knew of our venture, but despite a few suspicious looks from employees, we successfully made it out of the store with a $57.17 haul.

We were positive the mother and daughter had noticed us, and they had indeed mentioned our suspicious actions to the store employees. "Those girls were picking up things right and left," she had told the cashier. We stayed to visit with the manager for awhile, who concurred that most shoppers will never report

"I recently lost a $175 clock which was right by the counter," he said. A lava lamp priced at $28 has also been recently stolen.

We took time out from our thievery to have lunch and to pull ourselves together for our next haul. This whole thing was getting to be a little much, especially when we saw the mother and daughter walk by. They still thought we were for real, but they hadn't bothered to report us until we were already out of the store. It felt good to pay for our meal when we were through.

In our desperation to ue caught red-handed, we decided to do this one up good. We didn't stick close together this time, but separated and called to each other about the things we were taking. "Hey, I can't fit any more in my purse — do you have some more room?" we called across the aisles. Still shoppers remained fairly oblivious to our activi ty. After grabbing literally handfuls of small stuffed animals and throw. ing them into our already-overflow. ing purses, we finally got a few glances. We went for the realluxury items this time - wine decanters leather-bound appointment books and wall plaques were just a few of the things in our possession when we left the store.

Looking over our shoulders on the way out, we saw with relief that a woman shopper had run to the front desk and was frantically pointing us out to the manager. Finally smiling we went back and congratulated the woman for being the most conscein. tious shopper we had encountered

We told her of our experiment and she told us that she had been watching us all along. "I gave you every opportunity to go pay for the things," she said. Our haul at the store totaled $123.56.

The manager said that his store had lost over $2500 last year through shoplifting — three per-cent of his total sales. The potential problem increases during the Christmas season, when the number of shoppers is the highest. Most store managers, he said, hire extra employees and often a security guardto try to alleviate the problem during this time. Through the shoplifting experiment, we became acutely aware that the consumer has to take up the slack by paying more for retail it. ems. An aware shopper protects all consumers by noticing and reporting suspicious acts and theft.

Laetrile's effects need to be proven

The people who back laetrile must begin to have scientific proof of its effectiveness in stopping cancer and stop playing on our emotions before it can even be considered to be legalized.

Sister Marguerite Neumann, of the Clarke Chemistry department, brought out both ideas of the controversial laetrile issue at the Dubuque Fine Arts Gallery Tuesday.

"Laetrile is vitamin B-17 and is injected along with vitamins and enzymes. I want to see how it works on its own," Sr. Marguerite said.

Laetrile, a manufactured name for laevo-mandelo-nitrite-glucronic acid, is derived from the oils of apricot pits.

Supporters of laetrile say it works this way: the injected drug flows through the body until it reaches a cancer. Then a substance contained in the cancer cells releases cyanide from that cell which kills or at least stops the cancer. Sister Marguerite explained that the cyanide does not hurt the normal cells because they detoxify the cyanide.

The National Cancer Institute began seriously investigating the effectiveness of laetrile through human case studies January 26. Their work will take 6 months to verify and Sister Marguerite hopes they will document their findings for scientists to believe in. If the institute finds laetrile effective and without side effects, Americans will be able to obtain the drug by doctor's prescription.

"To date, there have been no scientific findings that prove laetrile cures cancer," Sister Marguerite said. "Before laetrile can be legalized, it must be proven safe and effective. This means strong scientific work. I am not saying some evidence isn't there, but I am saying that people behind it must be scientific in proving its effectiveness, or it will never be legalized."

Because laetrile has not been proven safe, no experimentation can be run on humans. All evidence must come from documented cases of laetrile effectiveness and laboratory research.

Sister Marguerite explained that cancer of the kidneys, stomach, ocwels, and brain tumors have not been treated successfully with la-

Because laetrile is illegal (most of Because laetrile is illegal (most of Because laetrile is from Mexthe drug is smuggled in from Mexico) the smuggled in from 600. ico), the price is jacked up 600-700% on the black market, Sister Marguerite and The FDA is trying Marguerite said. The FDA is trying to instruct people how not to buy fake drugs and waste their money.

One woman, of the 50 people squeezed into the Gallery basement, was very animate in her support of laetrile. "I can't see anything wrong with it. We have used the drug. brought to our doorstep every del by parcel post, and had very & results." She said the quality of life's better then all better than the pain of cancer.

The woman, who wished to ain appearance. main anonymous, accused the doctors and all more tors are to the more tors. tors and the FDA of covering up the evidence evidence about laetrile in order to keep the Sister Marguerite answered be keep themselves in business.

by saying that these cases must be documented before they can be considered

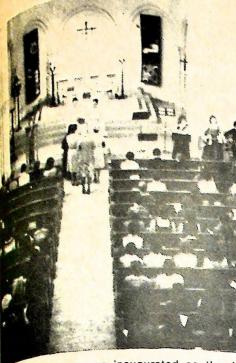

New Clarke

Whilemost Clarke students spent Christmas vacations skiing, arding, or simply relaxing, CSA Manning and her aly took on a special project of a new Clarke

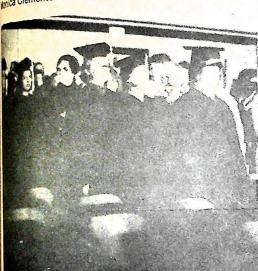

The old flag was so faded, it was pink and orange," laughed She had asked other acspined seamstresses around the sahasahad in the project, but the asked did not have time. So alled her sisters to see if they like to be "Betsy Ross for a The day turned out to be 60 The flag was presented reck to President Dunham in

Clarke's 13th President celebrates Inauguration

Meneve Dunham was inaugurated as the 13th Meneve College in ceremonies at Clarke on Above, the Clarke community gathered in Heart Chapel for a Mass honoring the inaugura-Heart Dunham. Below, Seniors lead the of President on Into Terence Donaghoe Hall. At President Dunham addresses the community. At let, M. W. Whitlow, chairman of the Board of lett, M. Transcription of the Board of the B the presidential medallion. At far right, Hank Gold-Psychology Department chairman, talks with the line of the li Above center, President Dunham speaks with Carol Speigel and juniors Mary Ann Frommelt and of shoppers is the highes. Moreon managers, he said, hir cun to ployees and often a security gunito try to alleviate the problem darie

Through the shoplifing ener-ment, we became acutely were that the consumer has to take up he slack by paying more for retaling ems. An aware shopper protessal consumers by noticing and reporing suspicious acts and theft.

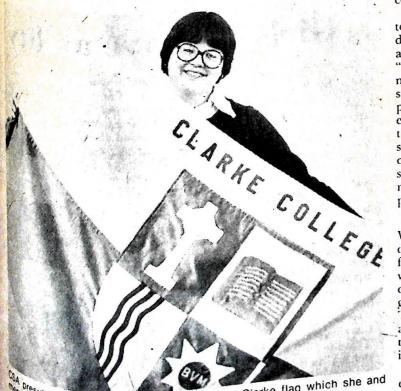

New Clarke flag made

While most Clarke students spent heir Christmas vacations skiing, arelling, or simply relaxing, CSA resident Rene Manning and her mily took on a special project of hir own — sewing a new Clarke

The old flag was so faded, it was host pink and orange," laughed lene. She had asked other acimplished seamstresses around the compus to take on the project, but ost she asked did not have time. So and called her sisters to see if they fould like to be "Betsy Ross for a The day turned out to be 60 slong. The flag was presented week to President Dunham in honor of her inauguration.

"A custom made flag would have cost hundreds of dollars," said Rene. The actual flag took only about two hours to sew; most of the time involved was with the banner. "My mom, my sisters Loretta and Rita, and myself all worked on the banner," Rene said. The pattern they used was simply a Clarke sticker, enlarged greatly to fit the size of the flag. The delicacy of the material made it difficult to handle, and the letters had to be sewn on by hand. "It would have been alot of work for one person," said Rene. "Things turn out better when people work together.'

ers of her family made and Christmas break. ers of her family made over Christmas break.

quantity is the most important item.

Mass production, consumption key elements of pop culture

'Laverne and Shirley', earth shoes, coke bottles and Barbie dolls were among the topics at a lecture given Thursday night by Sister Helen Humeston, Clarke history in-, structor on sabbatical at the University of Minnesota. "Popular Culture", sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee in introducing a series of events on the topic, was illustrated by a group of slides depicting such familiar items as magazine advertisements, newspaper headlines, cartoons and television celebrities.

Sister Helen asked the audience to think of an element that all these diverse items had in common. Unable to revoke a response, she said, "They are all mass produced to be mass consumed." This element, she said, is the key to the definition of popular culture, although she added most scholars of the field are hesitant to define it because of its sheer scope. "Popular culture is the culture of the marketplace," she said, adding that popularity and not quality is the determinant of popular culture.

Sister Helen described the "Two Worlds of American Culture" in differentiating popular culture from elitist art. "In the private world, she said, "importance is placed on the hand-tailored suit, the original painting, and the first edition. The artist in this world tries to separate himself from the masses, from the unwashed crowd - if they like it, then he's a failure.

In the public world, however, and in that public world the elements of popular culture are prevalent. An artist in the public world tries to reach as wide an audience as possible, and results are things like mass-produced clothes, Big Macs, and paperback books. Have you ever thought that when you sit down on Tuesday nights to watch 'Laverne and Shirley,' you are having the same media experience as 50 million other people? You're even having it at the same time!" she said. She added that this community experience is refer ed to by media expert Marshall Mc-Luhan as "tribalism." "Electronic média give us instant tribalism," she Sister Helen mentioned a few more garish products of mass production including a reproduction of Albrecht Durer's "Praying Hands" in the form of a plastic nightlight. This example of "kitsch," or misrepresentation of original art, is according to Humestorn, "the illigitimate child of an unhappy union between mass production and high

One of the requirements for the development of a popular culture is a technological society, Sister Helen said. "Primitive societies do not have popular culture, they have folk culture," she said, explaining that mass production and consumption is essential in classifying a culture as popular. "Primitive societies cannot reproduce identical items to be issued to masses.

Nor can popular culture exist in a communistic or totalitarian society where marketplaces may be restricted and media is largely propagandaistic rather than entertaining. "Popular culture as we have defined it here exists only in the free Western nations and in Japan," she said.

She mentioned two of the nation's most popular television shows, "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley" are set in the fifties, indicating a national wave of nostalgia. This popularity, she said, indicates a nationwide insecurity. "When nostalgia in a society becomes so prevalent, it's a sure sign that the country is going through great stress. The fifties seem like a simpler time, before Watergate, to which most Americans would like to re-

CEC films run all week

The Cultural Events Committee is sponsoring a series of films to be screened on February 6-10 in the Mary Josita Hall cafeteria at 5:45 p.m. These films are part of the Popular Culture events scheduled in the next few months to create student interest in contemporary cultural happenings.

"American Time Capsule," film on the media system, and "U.S. Art" are scheduled for February 6. On February 7, "Condensed Cream of Beatles," a musical film, will be screened. Theatre films entitled "Trouping" and "The Great Byron Burford Circus" are scheduled for February 8 and 9 respectively. Films to be shown on February 10 will be announced later.

UD downs Clarke 48-29; Crusader defense holds Spartans the University of Dubuque Spartans helped the team out by contributing 48-29, Thursday night

The only time Clarke had the lead was in the beginning of the game when they led 3-2. The Spartans led 30-15 at the half. During the second half the Crusaders changed from a zone defense to a full court press.

The Crusaders played a strong defensive game holding Felicia Payne to 14 points and Berna Whiteside to 4; Payne averages 23 and Whiteside 13 points per game. "We did what we wanted to do, we shut down the guns but, everyone else was hitting the basket," said Crusader coach Pat Folk. The downfall of the Crusaders was that "we weren't hitting and they were" commented Folk.

Annette Reiter led in scoring and rebounds with 20 points and 15 rebounds. Anna Kopko followed with 4 points and 10 rebounds. Senior Shirley Mormon Lindauer, a Cru-■Player of the Week■

The Crusaders were defeated by sader veteran from two years ago, six rebounds.

Sophomore guard Peg Smith who has not seen any action since the semester began returned to the team for a limited amount of time. Folk said they will "slowly work her in when we can.

The Crusaders play Highland to-night at 8:00 in the McCormick gymnasium on the University of Dubuque campus.

		fg	ft	pf 2	tp
CLARKE		9	2	2	20
Reiter		0	ō	0	0
Hivland		1	2	2	4
Kopko		ó	0	4	0
Lindauer		0	0	1	0
Edens	1.	1	0	o	2
Enzler		0	0	1	0
Hyde		0	1	3	1
Schnier		0	1	1	o
Smith		0	0	1	2
Brennan		- 1	0	1	29
Totals		12	5	15	29

Carrasquilla Young Whiteside Denning Meyer Loeffelholz

Platteville wins 67-16

The University of Wisconsin Plat-teville defeated the Crusaders 67-16 Wednesday January 25 at Plat-

The first ten minutes of the game were scoreless ones for the Crusaders. Coach Pat Folk said the Crusaders were defensively tough allowing Platteville to score only 57 points from more than 45 turnovers. "They hit what they got. We simply had no offense," said Folk.

Annette Reiter was high scorer with 11 points.

	fg	ft	pf	tp
Clarke	0	0	4	Ō
Cramer	2000	Ö	4	2
Edens	1		0	ō
Enzler	0	0		Total Control
Reiter	4	3	4	11
Hyde	0	2	2	2
Schnier	0	1	2	1
Schnier	0	0	3	0
Brennan
	fg	ft	pf	tp
Platteville	3	0	2	6
Leifker	4	2	2	10
-Levis	6	0	2	12
Hennessey	0.00	A CONTRACTOR OF THE PARTY OF TH	2	4
Hendricks	1	22		4
Vessers	2	0	1
Nielson	1	3	3	5
Hkovat	4	0	3	8
	3	0	1	6
Bresnahan	3	0	1	6
Van Natra	2	0	2	4
Lyght		0	3	2
Crook	1	U	3	- 7 07

See and Ski set for this weekend

See and Ski weekend II will be held Feb. 10-12. The one scheduled for Jan. 27-29 was cancelled because of bad weather and the Texas Flu.

Clarke College Admission Office anticiaptes over 40 high school seniors and juniors from parts of Illinois and Iowa. The $28 fee covers room, board, transportation and equipment charges. Participants will get a free ski lesson.

Registration will be on Feb. 10, 7-9 p.m. in Mary Josita lobby followed by a film on skiing at 10 p.m. Skiing at Sundown on Feb. 11, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and a social with Clarke students at 9 p.m. Mass will be celebrated on Feb. 12 at 10:45 a.m. before their departure at 1:15

after students had practiced Friday

The Student Affairs Committee ductor from North Hollywood. will meet Tuesday at 4:20 in the John Lease was assistant director of Mary Jo Formal Lounge. They will the festival. A concert was held at not meet today as scheduled. Classifieds schools in the tri-state area participated in the 7th Annual Choral

PERSONALS

Festival sponsored by the Clarke College Music Department February 8-4. Guest conductor was Paul

Salamunovich, a well known con-

Only 7 shopping days 'til my birthday! The Intellectual.

It's National History Month— our Major past time. Me, Myself and Tri, and Peggy.

Congratulations Flo and Polly on completing your state boards. Love, D.D.

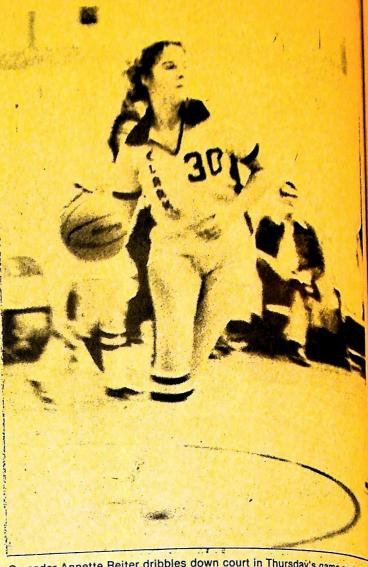

Happy belated birthday, Louise! 2nd floor gang.

Don't kid yourself, you'll never be five foot. Happy Birthday anyway, short stuff.

HELP WANTED

We invite graduating seniors and alumni to register with us as we are expanding our college recruitment program and are in contact with Midwestern employers. Registration fee of $1 will be concelled for January and February for graduating seniors. MIDWEST EMPLOY-MENT AGENCY, Suite 611, Dubuque Building:

Addressers wanted immediately! Work at home - no experience necessary. Excellent pay. Write American Service 8350 Park Lane, Suite 269, Dallas, Texas, 75231.

Crusader Annette Reiter dribbles down court in Thursday's game against in University of Dubuque Spartans. Reiter contributed 20 points to the 48.20 feet

Crusaders over Cornell break losing streak

The Crusaders broke a seven game losing streak by defeating Cornell 52-47 last Monday night.

The Crusaders won the game by controlling the middle of the court and by being defensively tough. Coach Pat Folk said the five starters, Sheila Brennan, Tammy Edens, Sherri Hyde, Annette Reiter and Cindy Schnier, were strong contributors to the victory.

Cornell retrieved the jump ball but, Clarke scored the first points of the game. The Crusaders controlled the boards until half time when they led 31-19.

The first five minutes of the second half were rocky for the Crusaders. They were defensively weak and the Rams were offensively strong. With seven minutes left the score was tied at 46 and with just over three minutes it was tied at 47.

Folk said the turning point of the second half was when Edens came off the bench and immediately scored five points. She added no mentum the team needed to get go Schnier led rebounding with !! and Reiter followed with 15. Reits was also top scorer of the game gaining 22 points.

According to Folk the defensive action during the last three minut was strong or "they would have beaten us".

Clarke

Kopko	2	1	0 5
Edens	0	Ô	0 0
Cramer	8	6	4 1
Reiter	4	5	4 11
Hyde	2	0	3 4
Schnier	4	0	2 1
Brennan	4
Dicial
	fg	ft	pl P
Cornell	0	0	0 1
Voogo	6	1	1 1
Duer	Ö	0	0
Wessen	4	1	5
Monter	Ô	0	4
Cant	1	1	2
Moleon	i	1	1
147-orbs	2	0	1
Cambbe	0	0	0
T	6	1	3
Fissens	0
HISSPINS

SPORT BRIGHTS Girls do have ability

By Meredyth Albright

A topic that has been of interest to school boards, college administrators and little league officials is "should girls compete against boys in athletic events?"

The pro argument is that if girls are capable they should be given the opportunity to compete against athletes of the same caliber. The con argument is that physically girls are not able to perform on the same level as boys. The "superior" male can also be given an inferiority complex if a female performs better than he.

It seems that decisions as to whether girls should compete with boys are not based on capabilities but personal viewpoints and biases. There is a tradition that says boys participate in athletics and girls sit on the sidelines to cheer them on. Slowly this tradition was broken with girls forming their own teams and leagues in limited sports. was fine with the general public girls were being their own personal parents had parents by girls were being their own pears and parents had something on proud of. Soon some girls begin develop an abilities of their sam mates. The abilities of their team mates. were no longer content to plant girls leagues so, they approach boys leagues boys leagues.

When the decision makes rule d that all ized that the girls were scripts and did have talents they were with the problem of breaking rate. with the problem of breaking rade tion. Once these decision congreters are alize that constant to congrete realize that girls want to compare with house with boys, not because they want to turn to tu they enjoy competition and opposition and oppositio qualified teammates and opposite ents. ents, girls will be able to compare a level when a level where they feel most contable and the able and where their needs are. Sex is not an important athletic competition, ability is

Faculty 0'Brie

David Brune stands next to the sculption of Dr. Meneve stands wood, in honor of Dr. Meneve currently being displayed on the stage

Sister Sheila O'Brien, Acting Academic Dean, could be holdin that position permanently if mem bers of Faculty Senate vote in favo of it by Jan. 27. The vote will com via a referendum recently issued t all faculty members, with two thoices: "I prefer the appointment of Sixter Sheila O'Brien as Acad emic Dean, effective Jan. 30", or " prefer the election of a Search Con mittee at the Faculty Senate Mee ng on Jan. 30 to begin immediate he search for an Academic Dean Dunham decided to put O'Brier continuance up to faculty vote aft OBrien had completed a full aca ad has cite as acting dean. S had been filling that role since to singulation of Sister Helen Thom last August. "I reminded t aculty that when I appointed Sis sarch. In all honesty is Sarch committee were to subr retal names to me now for

Clarke

Over Christmas vacation arke Loras Singers went o inging tour. It wasn't an ordir in the space of three weeks in said at the Taj Mahal, at a Lener Colony. Me were told that we have the Taj they knew of to sin Single Mahal, of to sin Single Mahal, of the President Mahal Single were told that we were

American Embassy in and they sang for him or about the building. outside the shout the shout the first werplained feet away in the state of his state that we reging he had which had primaries. Leper Colony was a

Cindy Schnier, sophomore Crusader center, has been chosen as this week's player of the week. She played a continuous defensive game throughout the season. Against Cornell on Jan. 30, she brought down 18 rebounds. She has scored a total of 28 points and tallied 128 rearound the dubuque colleges Nearly 300 students from 31 high St. Rose Priory Saturday evening Officers have been elected for the Social Work Club recently formed at Clarke. Elected were Kathy

O'Flaherty, president, Mary Ann

Rolling, program chairperson and JoEllen Reuter, secretary-treasurer.

Their terms run through Spring of

Deadline for the Richard Sherman Memorial Award and the Mary Blake Finan Literary Award is

March 17. Any Clarke student may submit fiction, poetry, essay and drama manuscripts. All entries which should be original and unpublished works are eligible for both awards. More details can be obtained from Sister Jane McDonnell, English department chairper-

The Wolverine Classic Jazz Orchestra will perform at Clarke February 12 in Terence Donaghoe Hall.

Set for 8 p.m., the performance is open to the general public. Admission is $3. Clarke students may be admitted free with a ticket and their ID card. The concert part of the Popular Culture Series is sponsored by the Clarke Student association.

The group features jazz from the 1920's and 1930's.